

The sky's the limit for kids at A Child's Space

By PAUL SCARLATO

A Child's Space Early Literacy and Learning Center is place for children to open their minds and expand their horizons.

This unique day care program is a pioneer in giving children a space where, with direction, the child can achieve unlimited academic and social success.

The program's primary goal is the child's personal, social and intellectual development. Using the center's hands-on researched based curriculum, children are encouraged to expand their emergent literacy skills using activities and play, which the center says is a child's work.

"Our staff is committed to children, not just on a professional level, but on a personal level." "We've created a space that invites children to build a love for learning in a fun and creative way, in this way, children grow to love going to school," said Kimberly Burke, a teacher and administrator.

Combining playing, singing, dancing and discovery are just some of the ways the program is designed to catch the child's interest and direct it toward learning in a fun and interesting way.

With programs such as Play-

School, children go a step beyond pre-school and explore themes that explore real world places through song, dance, storybook and other hands on experiences.

If you would like to know more about expanding you child's horizons, call A Child's Space Early Literacy and Learning Center at (312)

431-1234 or log onto www.achildspace.com for more information. The center is open Mon-Fri 7-6pm at 1020 S. Wabash, Suite 100, Chicago.

"Our staff is committed to children ... on a personal level."